This is a Psychology Class: a Class on Soul Psychology

I am giving you information on correcting your own psychology: your personality. I call it Soul Psychology. You are not your ego; you are not the negative parts of your personality; your true self is the soul—the one who was born to live your life.

I am talking to your soul; I am educating you in the ways of the ego so that your soul can conquer the habit of being the ego.

I know a psychologist would not give you the ideas that I am giving you; for example, suggesting that you pray for help in getting rid of the ego. Well, it works for me and also for others to whom I have recommended prayer.

A lady told me the other day how she got sober; she is a recovering alcoholic. She prayed. Now the interesting thing about this lady is that she did not know—as she told me, “I did not know that you could ask God for things. I did not know that you could ask God for help.” The moment that she said her prayer and asked God for help she was free of the alcohol ego-personality. The desire for the craving for alcohol was gone!

She has now been sober for 17 years.

No one taught her to pray. A prayer is a letter; it begins with Dear God...

How would you like it if you were God and had no work to do. No one brought you work. There you would sit waiting for people to bring you work—even a question that you could answer would be wonderful.

Eckhart Tolle and I disagree here on religion. You may have a religion or you may not have a religion but you have the ability to pray silently in you mind, which is a good use of your mind. Religions of all kinds serve the purpose to remind you of God and that you can ask Him for help, if religions fail us, it is from the failings of mankind. But just as I would not throw the baby out with the bath, I would not like to see that people turn away from formal religion just because it is not the perfection that God is. We are all trying to be free of the ego (in other words to be the good soul) in one way or another.

Religion is people trying to be the good soul together.

But do they really know themselves, or have they just added some spiritual-sounding concepts to the content of their mind?
