What is Your Mission?

I told you what my mission is. I have been telling you how I discovered what my mission is in this blog: it took years to develop it, but did I know I was developing it? No. One day I just knew.

You have been developing your life mission too. Think of your life and the lessons you have learned. Write them down. Write down the things you enjoy most. You have been in the process of going towards your mission all of your life.

1. First, you must know who you are to know what your mission is. You are the soul.
2. Second, you must know what you are not. You are not your ego. Learn the ego-personalities and begin to recognize them in yourself and others.
3. Third, you must be the soul, separate yourself from the wants and the needs of the ego: the agendas and the addictions of the ego. The ego has no mission: the soul is the only one with a mission in life. Be the soul.
4. Fourth, you must separate yourself from the egos of other people. Recognize them and do not interact with them. Find soul friends.
5. Fifth, your life has been a stepping stone pathway: you have taken one step after another to be who you are today. Retrace your steps and correct any errors you have made. Read Unraveling Your Past to Get Into Present in order to practice being your soul. When the game Who's Talking comes out, play it and practice being you, practice—that is how you will begin to be on the pathway of your soul.

After I wrote it and copyrighted it in 1998, I read Unraveling Your Past to Get Into the Present seven times and felt more of my soul every time; I got courage, the courage to be me; I was able to speak and act as my soul more and more each day and I know that you will too. It is the mental exercises in the book that help you: do them.

Your soul is spontaneous. Be open to change. Any time you force your soul to do something it is the ego. Let your soul make decisions, your soul does not force your body to do anything.

Remember who you are.

Reference #75 in the comparison table: A New Earth, chapter: Finding Who You Truly Are, p. 186 First ask the most fundamental question of your life: Who am I?Others may appear to be more evolved because they think of themselves as an immortal soul or divine spirit. But do they really know themselves, or have they just added some spiritual-sounding concepts to the content of their mind?

Reference #75 in your comparison table: Unraveling Your Past to Get Into the Present, chapter: The Soul/Sole Personality versus the Ego-Personalities p. 24 "If I am not me then who am I?" The real you is your soul/sole personality who has been hidden away, staying quiet for fear of reprisal.

Thank you for taking my class sessions. Paulette Renee Broqueville
