The baby elephant's story.

A tragic story of baby elephants who were transported from their native habitat to another natural habitat tells us what happens when the parents are not there to train the child to grow up civilized. The people in charge of the elephant relocation could not transport the grown elephants and so they killed the parents in front of the very eyes of the baby elephants!

The souls of the baby elephants were traumatized, hurt and became angry. In their new location they became juvenile delinquents. They killed, maimed and destroyed animals and the terrain in their new habitat.

The men did not understand what was wrong with the now larger baby elephants. The men killed one juvenile delinquent elephant; but in doing so they realized that soon all of the elephants would be juvenile delinquents. Someone realized what should be done to help the elephants.

They brought in adult elephants to teach the young elephants how to grow-up. It worked!

Are you a baby elephant? Are you missing the example of adult elephants who can teach you how to be “you” in your life? I have a plan that teaches you to be who you really are inside: the person you know is the real “you.” My plan is written in this book and the books to follow.

Follow my example and you will find the courage to be you, twenty-four hours a day; as the real you, you will be happier than you ever thought possible. I promise.

P.S. To friends of injured friends read page 203 and give this book to a friend in need.

Dear Reader,

I had a 20-year-old patient come to me, very reluctantly. He was sent by his father because he had tried to kill himself. I asked the young man what he wanted and he said, "I want to feel at peace. I want to work at a job that I am qualified for, and one where I am paid what I am worth. I want to be promoted according to my abilities."

He was the son of a wealthy man and had been expected to do what his father wanted him to do—work in the family company. I told the young man this: "Suppose you plant an apple tree in your backyard. Each year it grows bigger and soon you have apples falling from its branches. The tree is now 20 years old and someone chops it down. How are you going to feel? This is how your father feels about you."

As a Gonstead Chiropractic Doctor, I checked his spine for nerve pressure and found he had an inflammation and a thermocouple heat reading at T10 vertebra. This is the area in the spine that sends electrical nerve energy to the adrenal glands. The nervous tension and anxiety he was experiencing came from his overly stimulated adrenal glands caused by his lack of courage to do what he loved to do. I adjusted his T10 spinal vertebra and the next day he told me that he felt—peace.

I never saw him again but a letter came to my office from Australia, in it he told me: "I have found a job on my own and I have been promoted." Know what "you" want to do and then do it. To your soul and to people like you, I dedicate this book.
